Fulton Lewis, Jr.

Station WGMS at 7-7:15 P. M.
25 June 1958

Mr. Lewis made the following remarks in regard to the anti-American demonstrations in front of the American Embassy in Moscow stirred up by the Kremlin:

Secretary of State Dulles and his brother Allen Dulles, head of the CIA, reported the matter to the President in person, and the State Department later issued a statement charging that the demonstrations were obviously staged and were bound to increase international tensions. One of the reasons for the obviously staged accusation was that police were on hand to keep the demonstrators from resorting to any destructive violence and clearly had advance knowledge that the demonstration would take place.
